The objective of the session was to explain participant-related Constraints faced in writing research proposals, key components, critical critiquing, and elements that promote effective technical and ethical concerns in detail.

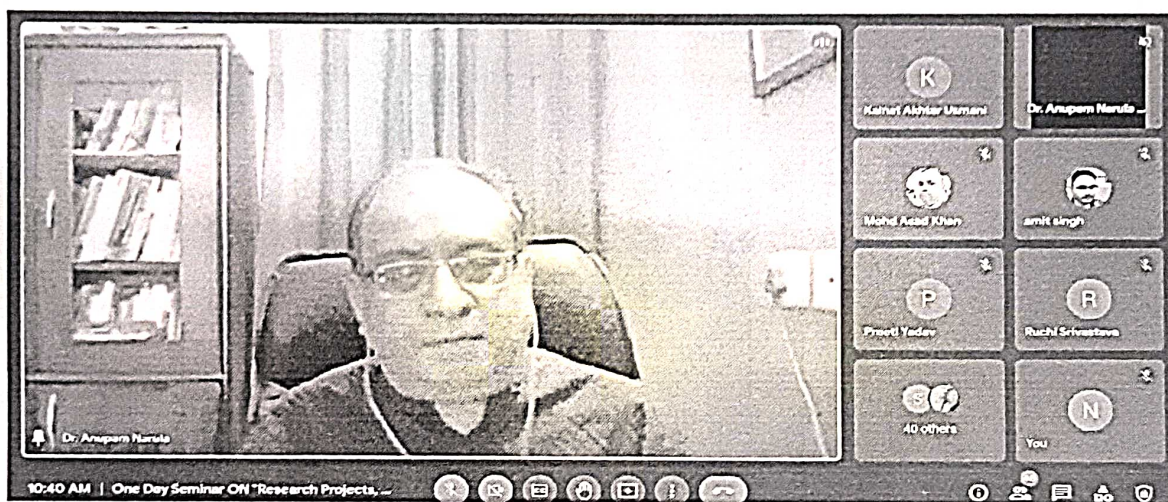

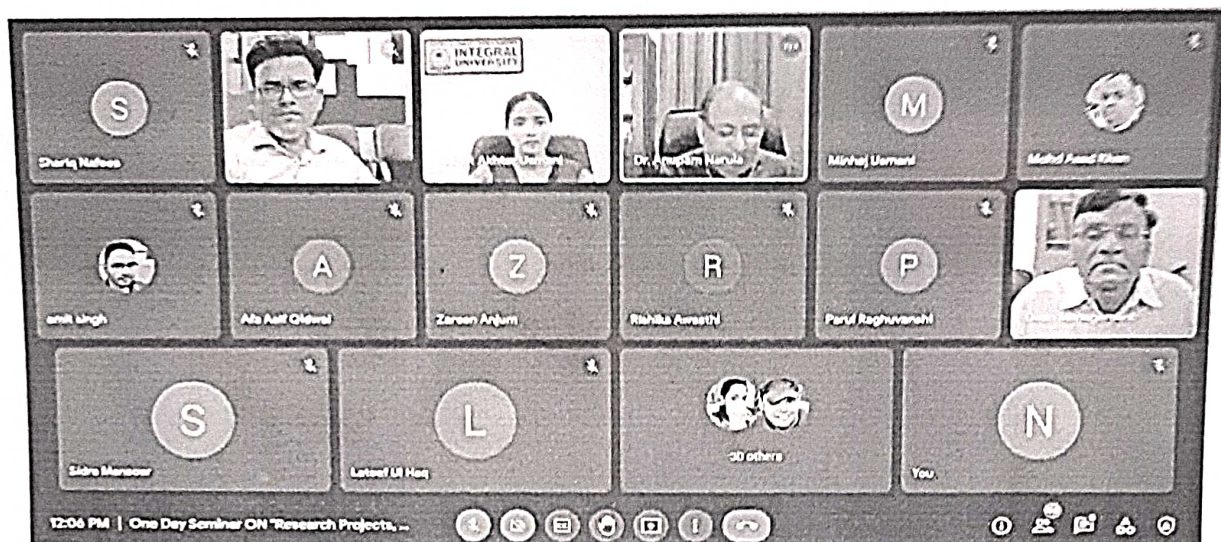

The speaker explained the points to be carried out while writing a research proposal. These projects and assignments require a great amount of scientific and technical input from the faculty and staff of the Institute. These are R & D projects sponsored by Government agencies, Industries, or other Institutions with a view to adding new knowledge, developing a new technological process, or creating new products. A considerable amount of studies and research/development work may have to be put in by the investigators to solve the problem and as such these projects are considered R & D projects. These are long-term assignments in emerging areas and in highly specialized fields of Science and Technology. The procedures to be followed for undertaking such projects, the administrative controls exercised, and the remunerations and incentives given to the staff for undertaking such inter-institutional projects were discussed in detail by the eminent speaker.

The seminar was coordinated by Dept. NAAC Criteria 3, in charge & members viz Dr. Farhina S.Khan, Ms. Nazia Akhlaq, Dr. Saurabh Bajpai and Ms. Prianka Bajpai. The moderator of the session was Dr. Kainat Akhtar Usmani. Total of 180 participants registered for the seminar.
