About the Theme

Emergency care provides life-saving medical treatment and support to critically ill or injured patients with complex medical conditions. Therefore, critical care requires close monitoring. A new concept and design gradually formed in recent years. By adopting modern scientific and technological means, it can timely discover and solve problems in the management of patients, improve efficiency, reduce medical service errors caused by human factors, optimize the allocation of human resources, and optimize the use and monitoring of instruments and equipment.

In recent years, research on intelligent intensive care units has gradually increased. At present, the most research is in the setting of intensive care unit and intelligent monitoring and alarm, and there are also some researches in risk prediction.

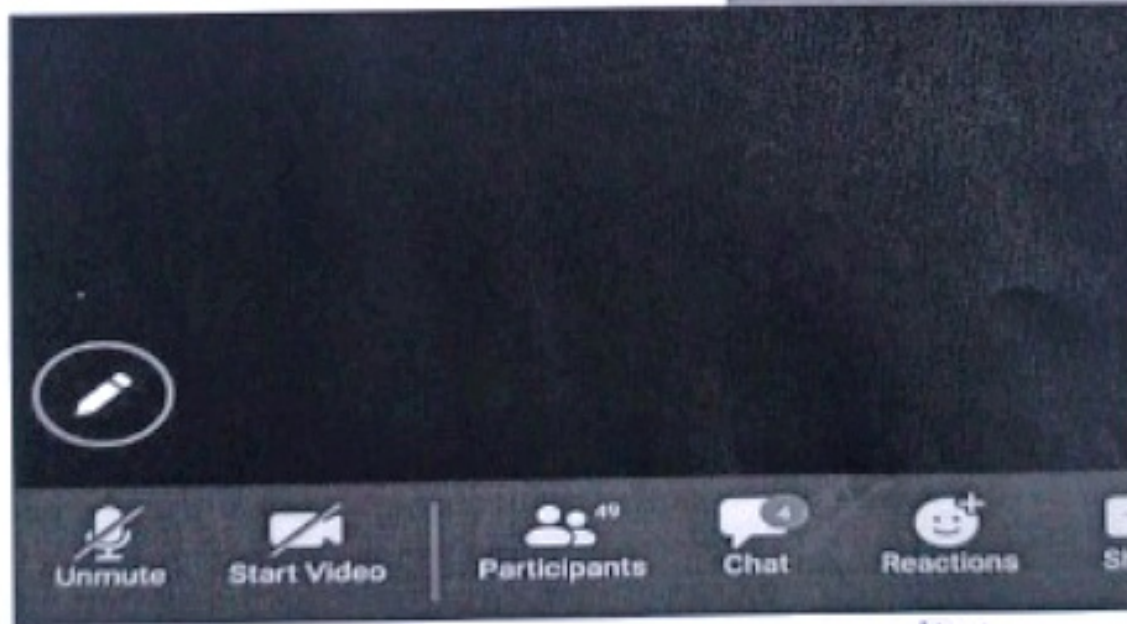

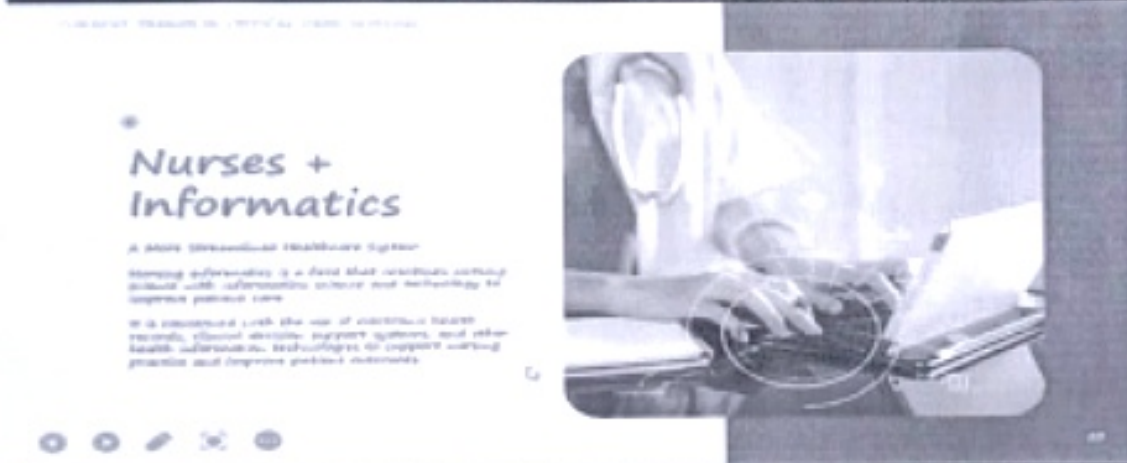

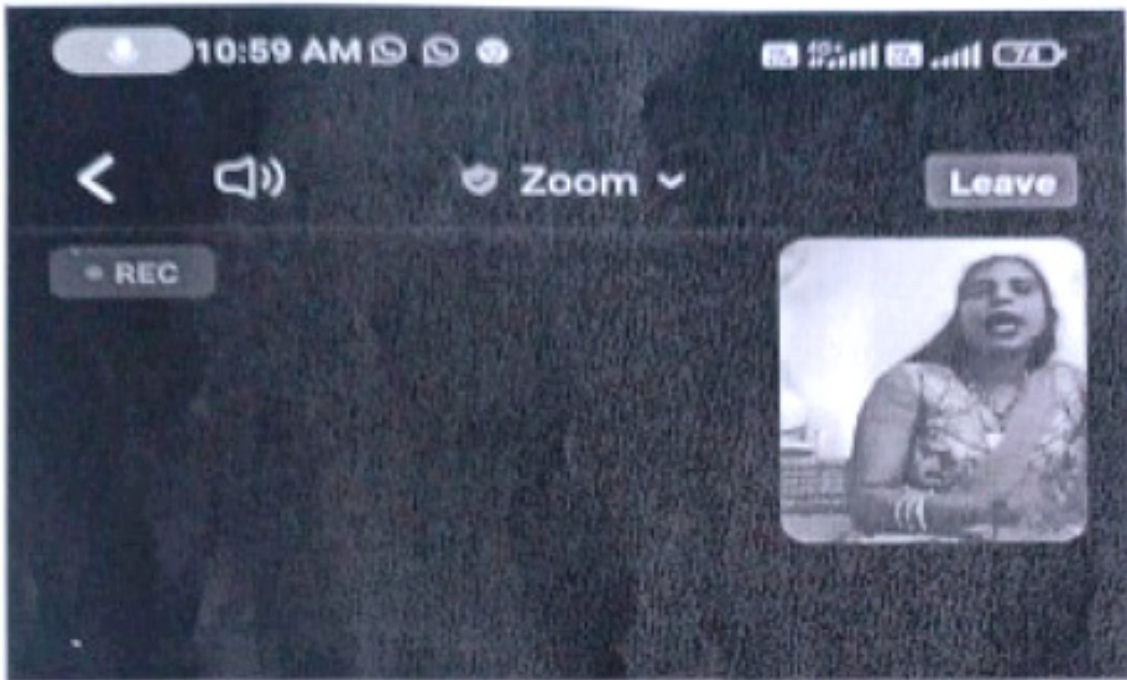

Event Schedule:

10:00 am to 11:00 pm

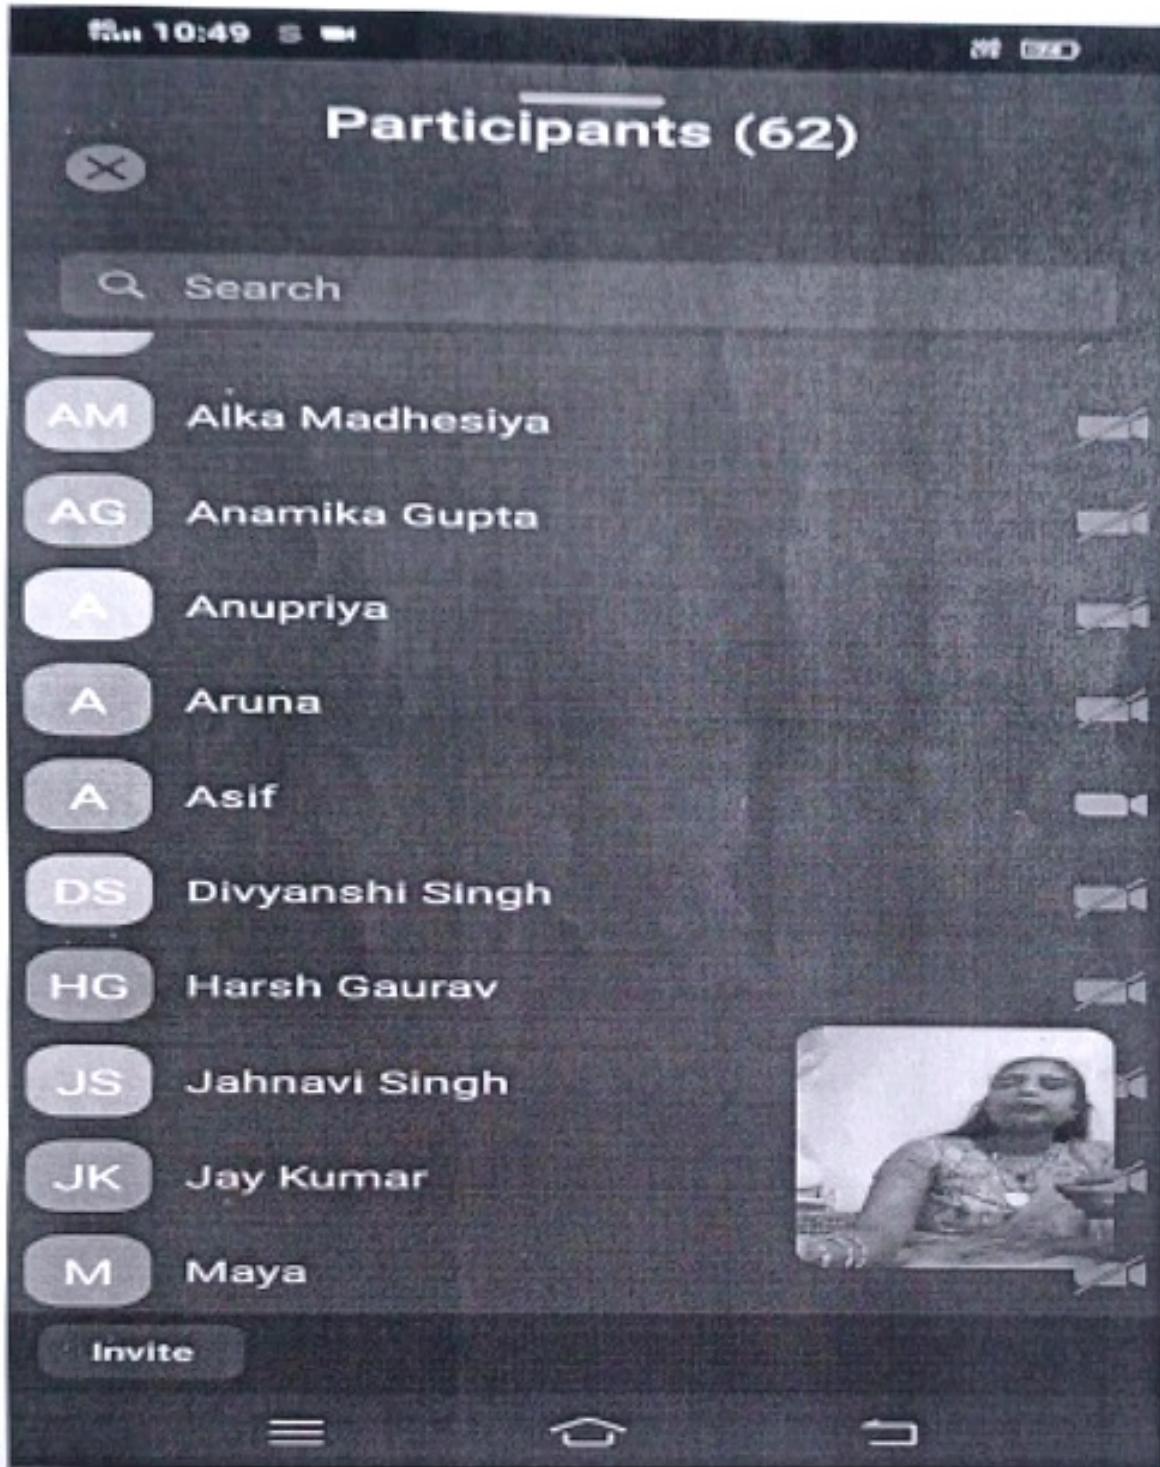

The students of BSc Nursing 3rd year has attended the program, the program was hosted by Mrs. Roli Srivastava, Welcome speech given by Mr. Parameshwar. Introduction of the Speaker was given by Mrs. Sandhya Pandey.
