A lecture on “IPR Awareness Programme” was jointly organized by the Faculty of Pharmacy, Integral University and National IP Awareness Mission (NIPAM) on February 10, 2024. The lecture aimed to familiarize participants with terminology and the difference between IPR, Patents, Copyrights, Registered and Trade Mark.

The event commenced with a welcome address by Prof. (Dr.) Syed Misbahul Hasan. He emphasized on the basic concept of IPR and its significance in protecting intellectual creations and innovations.

The lecture was addressed by Ms. Farah Bano, Women Scientist at NIPAM and TIFAC coordinator. Prof. (Dr.) Kuldeep Singh and Dr. Mohemmed Faraz Khan coordinated the lecture.

The talk of Ms. Farah Bano explained the importance and the concepts of IPR. The lecture was enlightened to the students and faculty and encompassed the whole gamut of intellectual property rights and included the following.

Introduction to Intellectual Property Rights (IPR): Understanding the concept of IPR and its significance in protecting intellectual creations and innovations.

Differentiating Patents and Copyrights: Explaining the distinctions between patents and copyrights, which are both crucial components of intellectual property but apply to different types of creations – patents for inventions and copyrights for artistic and literary works.

Registered and Trade Marks: Clarifying the differences between registered and trademarked intellectual property, highlighting the importance of trademarks in branding, and protecting unique identifiers.

Terminology Familiarization: Providing a comprehensive understanding of relevant terminology used in the field of intellectual property, ensuring that participants can navigate discussions and legal aspects related to IPR more effectively.

Role of NIPAM: Shedding light on the National IP Awareness Mission's role in promoting awareness and understanding of intellectual property rights at a national level.
